

Project life.

Some people see life as a series of projects. Some concurrent and many sequential. We like this view. We think it makes our existence easier to manage. Deal with one thing at a time and then another thing. Even during the same day.

What it also enables us to think about, is the notion that we need different knowledge and people for each 'project'; each new idea, venture, adventure, challenge. In fact, come to think of it, each new ambition.

This way of thinking, for which we do not take the credit (it's hardly new) guided us in structuring our new site. We have 'project' categories, forum topics and a system to call people with the relevant interest or experience back to the site.

Try it out. Come to raadzaak. Then tell us what you think.

Thanks.

raadzaak
where ambitions meet experience